2 February 2010: The Board of LongReach Group Limited today announced that, C4i Pty Ltd, a wholly owned subsidiary of the LongReach Group, was awarded a contract by Daronmont Technologies for the supply of its IP based Red/Black Switch*plus* Communications system to Royal Australian Air Force. This contract follows an order C4i received from the Queensland Government for the supply of a communications system for Townsville ports.

“C4i is offering its world class IP based Switch*plus* red/black product for this mobile military command and control system. The Switch*plus* product provides niche communications and control capabilities to defence forces. C4i has previously delivered Air Defence communications systems to the United States, Europe, Australia and Asia. The mature state of our Switch*plus* IP product allows us to address multiple vertical markets using our common system architecture” said Peter Harrison, Managing Director of C4i.

The Red/Black system to be delivered will be tailored to meet the unique requirements of the RAAF. The system is based on C4i products that have been specifically designed for mobile and transportable applications such as this project.

The Townsville Ports system is based on standard C4i product and will be commissioned in March 2010. The system will be used by the ports for Maritime safety and harbour control of commercial traffic. The maturity of the C4i product has allowed C4i to design, manufacture and commission the system within three (3) months of receiving the order.

The referenced contracts all use the latest C4i Switch*plus* IP based technology which has now been delivered to customers in America, Australia, Europe and Asia. Both projects are expected to be completed this calendar year.

For over 20 years, C4i has specialised in delivering standard-setting communication solutions for mission-critical military and government customers around the globe. C4i is based in Melbourne, Australia and Reston, Virginia, USA, and has representatives around the world.
